

BACK COVER

"A very peculiar and anomalous situation: a soldier that guards prisoners at one of the secret detention centers of the military dictatorship meets one of his neighbors and helps him out. This unleashes a sequence of events that brings to light the obscure circuits of the repressive Army intelligence systems, but also the ties of friendship and loyalty.

Exploring unknown dimensions of exile, this documentary narrates the relationship between a married couple detained by the military and Andrés "Papudo" Valenzuela, a soldier in the Air Force and an agent of the Joint Command who cannot bear to continue participating in these crimes and defects from the violence born out of the coup d'état. Risking his life, having to change his identity and flee the country, "Papudo" delivered crucial information that uncovered the clandestine and illegal activities of the heinous Joint Command."
